

Director of Communications

JOB DESCRIPTION

The Hills Church exists to make and grow followers of Jesus. We're passionate about using our talents for God's purposes and that's why we've dedicated our careers to ministry.

We're currently looking for a full-time Director of Communications. If you love articulating vision and mission through social media, website, publications, signage, media and marketing, this may be the position for you.

You are:

- A college graduate
- Experienced (at least 2 years) in the field of communications and/or marketing
- Able to develop and maintain groups and teams
- Experienced in social media, mass media and other forms of large group communications
- Able to work with church leadership to execute vision
- Excellent in written and verbal communication skills
- Proficient in Microsoft Office Suite

The perfect fit:

- Proficiency in InDesign, Illustrator and Photoshop is a plus.
- You possess an eye for graphics.

You will:

- Lead, develop, manage and guard the church's brand thereby preserving and promoting the image and vision of The Hills Church
- Develop and nurture relationships with decision makers of ministries at The Hills Church
- Lead the generation, discernment and dissemination of all social media, print, digital, video and other media in a timely manner, ensuring strategic goals are consistently communicated
- Develop strategic promotional plans for ministries and events
- Create and maintain content for the church's website, mobile app and social media to ensure new and consistent information is posted and evaluated regularly
- Stay attuned to the pulse of the church and the culture outside the church and then strategize ways to build bridges to people, helping them take their next steps toward Christ
- Lead a graphic design team
